

Listen there's a war going on and I can't sleep
I keep having nightmares instead of dreams
I see the chaos happening in my mind and it's making me harder to breathe.
I just can't believe how the world is almost down on its knees
It's like Armageddon coming back on us with a heavy loaded breeze.
Sometimes I feel like the whole world is dying of asphyxia because the air is
So much toxic filled with sadness and despair
Because I know how they feel and they need help.
I think about this about this constantly because I barely think about myself, If you look into my mind you would see that I feel
The government promised that they'll protect us
Where's your promise then?
COVID rages on within us,
The world trapped because we're contagious
I'd rather have fairness over being untreatable.
This is critical we're losing our lives
Our eyes they have finally been opened
The world is choking and the only way to fight back is if your mind's awoken.
Wear a mask, keep your distance
We must build a resistance.
